

Irish Universities Athletics Champions 1873-2020

Updated March 2020

University athletics have played important roles in the foundation and evolution of track and field in Ireland. The first athletics meeting took place in College Park on Saturday 28 February, 1857, under the auspices of Trinity College Dublin Football (rugby) Club, termed 'The Dublin University Football Club Foot Races'. This athletics meeting was only preceded by meetings organised by The Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, London in 1842 and at Exeter College, Oxford in 1850. What became known as "The College Races" continued through until 1986, except on eight occasions – 1878 and 1879 when the Board of the College refused permission because of a drunken riot by students in 1877, WWI (1915-1919) and 1921 because a female student spectator had been shot dead by an I.R.A. sniper from Nassau Street during a cricket match. The first All-Ireland Track and Field Championships were held in College Park under the auspices of Irish Champion Athletic Club on 7 July, 1873, with some 8,000 spectators watching 91 entries in the 13 events. Henry Wallace Doveton Dunlop, a Trinity graduate, was the founder of the I.C.A.C. His lasting achievement was the building of Lansdowne Road Rugby Ground, the oldest international rugby ground in the world, as a multi-sport complex for athletics, cricket, rugby, tennis, archery and bowls. College Park and Lansdowne Road would continue to be prime venues for international athletics matches and meetings and Irish championships for over a century. The Queen's University of Ireland was established formally by Royal Charter on 3 September 1850 as the degree-awarding body for the Queen's Colleges of Belfast, Cork and Galway, which had been established in 1845. Queen's College Cork held its first athletic sports on 14 May, 1869.

A proposition to hold an Inter-University Sports between Queen's University of Ireland and the University of Dublin, Trinity College, was first mooted in May 1872 with the intent to hold the meeting in Dublin in July 1872. It is not known what became of this original proposition. The subsequent proposal of Queen's University to hold the intervarsity event on 19 May 1873 was considered at the annual general meeting of Dublin University Athletic Club on 14 March, 1873. The proposal of Queen's University to found an 'Inter-University Contest' was met with a negative response from Trinity College, as it considered that the inaugural Irish Champion Athletic Club meeting in College Park would open the field to all University competition. Thus, Trinity College Dublin did not compete in the inaugural intervarsity championships in Cork, but instead hosted the inaugural Irish Champion Athletic Club Championships at the beginning of July. Nonetheless, the Queen's University inter-collegiate contest at the Cork Cricket Grounds, Mardyke between the Queens' Colleges Belfast, Cork and Galway [which nowadays are Queen's University of Belfast (Q.U.B.), University College Cork (U.C.C.) and the National University of Ireland Galway] was very successful. This was not only the first inter-collegiate athletics meeting held in Ireland, but also the world's first national intervarsity athletics meeting. Cork competed in scarlet and black, Galway in blue and white and Belfast in red, blue and gold. An estimated 2,500 spectators watched the athletics. Of the thirteen events on the programme, Cork won ten and Belfast three. In 1874 the Queen's inter-collegiate meeting was held in May in Belfast. There was then a hiatus for 38 years in intervarsity athletics for reasons obscured by the passage of time, while each of the Queen's Colleges and Trinity College continued to hold their own annual athletics meetings in which athletes from other colleges took part.

Intervarsity championships resumed in 1912, much due again to initiatives by U.C.C., with all bar University College Galway (U.C.G.) participating. The spirit to revive and augment these inter-university championships came at a time of increasing strife between the bodies administering Irish athletics (the G.A.A. and the I.A.A.A.), which the students of the universities wished to circumvent by holding championships under the auspices of their Athletic Unions. These championships continued in 1913 in Dublin and in 1914 in Belfast, again without U.C.G. Not for the only time in the history of Irish athletics, students put the best interests of athletic rivalry before politics. In commenting on the split between the two governing bodies, the Irish Times wrote "Under these circumstances it must be said that the inception of the Inter-University Sports came at a most opportune time at what may, with accuracy, be described as a most critical point in Irish athletics" and continued "We shall welcome any developments which lead to increased intercourse between students of our various Universities"!

The Great War (1914-18) intervened leading to suspension of intervarsity track and field for five years. The 1920 championships were hosted by Trinity College in College Park on the final day of a revitalised Trinity Week. The Championships in 1921 were to have been held in Cork, but because of a peak of violence in Co. Cork during the War of Independence they were moved to U.C.D.'s Terenure Grounds. In 1922 they were hosted by U.C.C. With the formation of the National Athletic and Cycling Association of Ireland (N.A.C.A.I.) in July 1922 through the amalgamation of the I.A.A.A. and the Athletic Council of the G.A.A., organisation of the annual intervarsity championships took place under its auspices. In 1924 the J.P. O'Sullivan Challenge Cup was inaugurated as the trophy for the winning men's team at the annual track and field championships and has been presented annually since then, except during WWII (1940-45) and in 2020 due to the coronavirus pandemic.

While one split in Irish athletics had been eliminated others were to follow. The foundation of the Northern Ireland Amateur Athletic Association in 1932 led to its rejection of the N.A.C.A.I. as an All-Ireland governing body for athletics. This North-South split was followed by the International Amateur Athletic Federation (I.A.A.F.) passing an amendment at its 12th Congress in Stockholm in August 1934 confining the authority of national governing bodies to the recognised international boundaries of nation states, a move that the N.A.C.A.I. rejected, which eventually led to its rustication from the I.A.A.F. and the formation of a new Irish Athletic body in 1937, the Amateur Athletic Union of Eire (A.A.U.E.), which gained formal recognition by the I.A.A.F. as the national governing body for athletics in the Republic of Ireland in 1938. The North-South split and the N.A.C.A.I. – A.A.U.E. split in the Ireland were to have consequences for intervarsity competition for 30 years. The 1933 intervarsity championships were the last to be contested by Q.U.B. until 1967. The 1936 intervarsity championships were hosted by U.C.D. at its new grounds at Belfield. The 1937 championships hosted by Trinity College in College Park were to be the last that T.C.D. participated in officially until 1962.

The National University of Ireland Colleges – U.C.D., U.C.C. and U.C.G. – remained aligned with the internationally ostracized

N.A.C.A.I., whereas T.C.D. joined the ranks of A.A.U.E. clubs and Q.U.B., the N.I.A.A.A. From 1937–1961, only the N.U.I. colleges participated in the annual intervarsity championships run under the auspices of the N.A.C.A.I., except for 1951. After extensive discussions between the Colleges of the National University of Ireland and the Council of the A.A.U.E., it was agreed that T.C.D. could compete in the 1951 Intervarsity Championships on the basis that the Intervarsity Championships were held primarily between Universities and Colleges and not between affiliated athletics clubs as such and that membership of a University or College team depended on being a student of the University or College and not on being a member of an athletic club in the University or College, i.e., the intervarsity championships were a 'closed' competition for students. This led to the N.I.A.A.A. demanding that the Trinity athletes who had competed be banned from international competition, which fortunately was not upheld by the I.A.A.F. The intervarsity championships were not held from 1940–1945 due to 'emergency' regulations, transport restrictions and petrol rationing. Trinity College and Q.U.B. continued with their annual T&F match for the Londonderry Trophy, which had been inaugurated in 1925, even during WWII. With the exception of the WWII years, T.C.D. hosted matches against Scottish universities and reciprocated travel the following year and also sent teams to compete in the British Universities.

Students historically have used their ingenuity to circumvent regulation. The first attempt which allowed athletes from the National University and Queen's University Belfast to compete against each other during the split was the Mercury Club meeting in Belfast on 14 July, 1945. Cognisant that students of both universities could not compete against each other under N.I.A.A.A. laws or N.A.C.A.I. laws without the threat of suspension, Q.U.B. decided to form the Mercury Club composed of athletes of the five universities of Ireland and ran the fixture as a private meeting confined to members of the same occupation under Mercury Club laws, as provided for by a rule in the A.A.A. Handbook. Thus University students, members of the same occupation, could compete against each other in such a meeting. The naming the umbrella club after Mercury (Hermes) was very appropriate as Mercury was also the patron of boundaries and of the travelers who cross them, of athletics and sports, and of weights and measures. The Mercury Club Championship took place with the blessing of the N.I.A.A.A. with Q.U.B., U.C.D. and U.C.C. competing. Trinity College was not able to compete at the meeting because there was no similar rule in the A.A.U.E. Handbook. However, Q.U.B.'s inventiveness was negated by a ruling made at a joint N.I.A.A.A.–A.A.U.E. meeting on 6 October, 1945 which left the Mercury Club dead in the water. Interestingly at the same joint meeting it was ruled that at meetings held under the laws of the Army Athletic Association, members of the Irish Armed Forces were not competing in such meetings voluntarily, but were commanded to represent their units, barracks or divisions by military officers, irrespective of any civilian Association these athletes might be affiliated to through athletic clubs of which they were members.

In November 1950 at a meeting in Trinity College, Dublin, an Irish Universities' Cross Country Board was set up with the objects of promoting intervarsity cross country tests and selecting an inclusive Irish Universities cross-country team to compete in international matches against universities or university select teams from other countries. The Board would operate under A.A.U.E. and N.I.A.A.A. laws and would invite student athletes from all Irish universities to take part in its activities. While the intent was commendable, the practicalities were potentially contentious. Critics felt that it was an ill thought-out venture and a further wedge in the athletic dispute. Despite the fact that neither UCD nor UCC nor UCG were affiliated as clubs at that time to the N.A.C.A.I., athletes within these Colleges who might have been selected or invited to trials were affiliated to the N.A.C.A.I. through their local clubs. Thus, it was unclear how athletes affiliated to the N.A.C.A.I. could take part in such cross-country tests under the rules of the A.A.U.E. without leaving themselves open to suspension by the N.A.C.A.I. or how athletes affiliated to the A.A.U.E. or N.I.A.A.A. could compete against fellow students in the Colleges of the National University of Ireland without exposing themselves to suspension by their respective Associations.

Between 1946 and 1960 various attempts by the Universities in the Republic to enable intervarsity competition on an All-Ireland basis or within the Republic of Ireland failed, but not from want of trying. Indeed on several occasions Trinity and U.C.D. athletes were sanctioned by their respective Associations. While T.C.D. did participate in the Intervarsity Championships in 1951, as previously mentioned, this only led to a further closing of the door by the athletic authorities. U.C.D., denied international competition since 1937, pushed the concept of collegiate athletics being 'closed' competition without the control of national governing bodies by competing in the International Catholic Universities' Cross-Country Championships at Rheims, France, in February, 1958, winning the team Bronze medals [Donal Cullen, Harry Horneck, Jimmy O'Neill, Maurice Byrne]. The winners were the Catholic University of Louvain. The following year UCD won a 13-event intervarsity match against the Catholic University of Louvain in Belgium. The return match at Belfield in April 1960, which was won by Louvain, led to the suspension of Brendan O'Reilly (Donore Harriers), Owen Dalton and Niall Brophy (both Crusaders) by the A.A.U.E. on the basis of the 1951 ruling of the joint A.A.U.E.–N.I.A.A.A. meeting. All three competed for UCD in an athletics meeting against five French universities' teams in Paris - Chartres, Tour, Angers and Versailles (2 teams) - at the beginning of May that year, winning six of the ten events and the overall competition. Wise counsel and persuasive argument was needed to resolve the increasingly ludicrous situation for Irish intercollegiate athletics.

The breakthrough came in 1961. A Dublin University Harriers and Athletic Club (DUHAC)-led initiative through the A.A.U.E. led to the I.A.A.F. granting permission in May 1961 for a 'closed' inter-university contest between T.C.D. and U.C.D. Frenetic arrangements followed. On Thursday 1 June 1961 the first officially sanctioned Intervarsity Match since 1937 involving Trinity College Dublin, affiliated to the A.A.U.E., and University College Dublin, affiliated to the N.A.C.A.I., took place in College Park. It was an event that would help to lead to the formation of Bord Lúthchleas na hÉireann (B.L.E.) in 1967 and a healing of much, but not all, of the conflict between the A.A.U.E. and the N.A.C.A.I. In line with meetings between T.C.D. and U.C.D. in other sports, e.g., rugby, lawn tennis, hockey, sailing, this annual athletics fixture became known colloquially as "The Colours Match". Conditions for this inaugural inter-university athletics meeting were ideal. Such was the public enthusiasm for the match that in excess of 5,000 spectators watched the events. The following year the A.A.U.E. gave Trinity College permission to compete in the intervarsity championships in Galway, the logic being that if T.C.D. could compete against U.C.D. in a closed meeting, then T.C.D. could compete against all three colleges of the National University of Ireland in a closed competition, all of which were affiliated to the N.A.C.A.I. Intervarsity cross country championships were inaugurated on 16 February 1963 in Phoenix Park, hosted by Trinity College, again under the aegis that this was a closed competition sanctioned by the I.A.A.F. ruling.

There can be little doubt that the development of women's athletics in universities was stunted by the negative attitude to the Catholic Archbishop of Dublin, John Charles McQuid, towards women competing in athletics at mixed public sports and thereby displaying themselves inappropriately before public gaze. Crusaders A.C. had made an attempt to form a women's section in 1947 which was discontinued in 1951. In contrast the Northern Ireland Women's A.A.A. was established in the 1950's. The vilification of Maeve Kyle for going to Melbourne Olympics as a member of the Irish team while leaving her husband and family to fend for themselves was indicative of the attitude engendered by McQuaid's views on women in sport. It was not until 1962 that Crusaders A.C. re-established a women's section, followed by Clonliffe Harriers in 1963. Women's clubs or women's sections of the up until then male University clubs were established in 1964–65 in Trinity, U.C.D., U.C.C. and U.C.G. The inaugural intervarsity cross country and track and field championships for women (with 5 track and 5 field events) were both hosted at Belfield by U.C.D. in 1966 in conjunction with the men's intervarsities. Q.U.B.'s women were refused permission to compete in the track and field championships by the N.I.A.A.A. because U.C.D. was affiliated to the N.A.C.A.I. With the establishment of B.L.E. in April 1967, Q.U.B. returned to the intervarsity championships at the Mardyke in May of that year. With the addition of women's events and expansion of the numbers of participating colleges in 1969 – 1970 (e.g., Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, St Patrick's College Maynooth, New University of Ulster), the championships moved to a two-day competition from 1971.

The organisation of intervarsity championships by student-led intervarsity committees was not always as professional as it should have been. Moreover, the manner in which colleges were added to those allowed to compete at the intervarsities was at best fickle and haphazard. Senior figures within the university sector with a passion for athletics saw the need to restructure and change outdated modus operandi. This led to the formation of the Irish Universities Athletic Association (I.U.A.A.) in October 1990 as the governing body for intervarsity athletic competition. This brought rules and regulations, continuity, experience, wise heads, structure and oversight. Road Relay Championships were inaugurated in 1988 within the hallowed precincts of St Patrick's College Maynooth (now Maynooth University) and have been held there since within minor exceptions. Combined Events outdoor championships were inaugurated in 1993 and ran as a separate championship through 2002. They are now incorporated into the annual indoors and outdoors track and field championships as individual and team competitions. Indoor T&F championships were inaugurated in February 1993 at Nenagh Olympic Stadium and were held there annually through 2012 before moving to the Athlone IT Arena in 2013. The late 1980's and early 1990's saw expansion of Third Level Education. The I.U.A.A. oversaw the expansion of the intervarsity championships to incorporate students from Institutes of Technology and other colleges offering third level diploma and degree courses, greatly increasing the standard of competition, athletic achievement and profile of intervarsity championships. The I.U.A.A. is currently the Universities Committee of Athletics Ireland.

Road Relays Men -

Note: From 1987 - 1992 the championships were held in February - March that corresponded to an academic year, i.e., in March 1992 this was the championship for 1991-92. In 1992-93, the road relays moved to before Christmas, the 1992-93 championships being held in November 1992. Note thus that there were two road relays in 1992, one in March (academic year 1991-92) and one in November (academic year 1992-93)

Road Relays Women

Note: From 1987 - 1992 the championships were held in February - March that corresponded to an academic year, i.e., in March 1992 this was the championship for 1991-92. In 1992-93, the road relays moved to before Christmas, the 1992-93 championships being held in November 1992. Note thus that there were two road relays in 1992, one in March (academic year 1991-92) and one in November (academic year 1992-93)
