The Tailteann Schools Inter-Provincial Athletics Championships are the modern successor of the games which are part of the pre-Christian history of Ireland, predating the ancient Olympic Games, and now provide a keenly fought annual contest for schools' Intermediate boys and girls (Under 17 on 1st September in the year of competition – a junior athlete may be selected for an event by a province) from Connacht, Leinster, Munster and Ulster. These championships, referred to colloquially as the Tailteann Games, have themselves undergone an evolution to their current format since 1963.

According to Lebor Gabála Éirenn (The Book of Invasions), the Tailteann Games (Aonach Tailteann) were founded by Lugh Lámhfhada as a mourning ceremony for his mother Queen Tailte. Folklore dates the Games from 1600 BC, although other published sources claim they started as far back as 1829 BC. The ancient Aonach served three purposes – honouring the dead, proclaiming laws and providing sport and cultural festivities. They had a multi-sport format which included athletic events recognised today – running, high jump, long jump. The Games were held up until ca. 1170 AD, when they ceased due to the Norman invasion of Ireland. They were revived in medieval times as the Tailten Fair.

In the modern era the first attempt to rekindle the Tailteann Games was mooted by the GAA shortly after its foundation in 1884 with Michael Davitt championing the idea. The ill-fated American Invasion Tour of 1888 was intended to raise £5,000 for their revival but was a financial disaster – a loan of £450 was required to bring the touring party home. In 1921 during the First Dáil, Éamon de Valera proposed the staging of an "Irish Race Olympic". James Joseph Walsh, later Postmaster General, was put in charge of planning the event with Croke Park as the major venue. The planned eight-day multi-sport programme presented to the Dáil in March 1922 was postponed because of the Irish Civil War (June 1922 -May 1923) and further delayed until August 1924. Gold, Silver, Silver Gilt and Bronze medals were struck depicting Tailtiu, the patron deity of the Ancient Tailteann Games. Athletics were the centrepiece of the Games. While the intention was that all competitors were of Irish birth or Irish heritage, stars from the Paris Olympic Games without Irish Heritage were invited to compete to provide world class competition. This was repeated in 1928 after the Olympic Games in Amsterdam. The third iteration of the Tailteann Games was held in 1932. However, the planned Tailteann Games in 1936 fell foul of the suspension of the National Athletic and Cycling Association by the I.A.A.F. and were not held subsequently.

In 1963 the Willwood Athletic Foundation, founded by Messrs Williams and Woods Limited of Dublin (abbreviated to Willwood) to revive the Tailteann Games, and the Irish Schools Athletic Association collaborated to stage the Willwood Junior Tailteann Games (Athletic Sports) at Croke Park: "To encourage and foster athletics and other physical activity among schools, colleges, universities and boys clubs established in Ireland, as an out-of-school activity." It was hoped that this would be a springboard for the Tailteann Games on a proper basis, possibly as early as in 1965, which did not come to fruition. The Williams and Woods Company was established in Ireland in 1856 as a manufacturer of jams and marmalades, but had an expanded portfolio of products by the 1960's. The Willwood Junior Tailteann Games were open to all boys over 11 and under 19 years of age. There was free open entry in four age groups with limited numbers of events in each: Over 11 and under 13 [100 yards, high jump], Over 13 and under 15 [100 yards, 220 yards, high jump], Over 15 and U17 [100 yards, 880 yards, high jump and shot putt (4 kg)] and Over 17 and under 19 [100 yards, 440 yards, mile, high jump, shot putt (12 lbs)]. Among the drivers behind this event in its formative years were Jack Sweeney [who coached Ron Delany, Brendan O'Reilly (high jump) and Eamonn Kinsella (110 mH)], who was Director of the inaugural Games, Mick Doogan, Jimmy O'Mahony and Bill Hyland.

The Willwood Junior Tailteann Games were opened on Saturday 28 September 1963 by Dr Patrick J Hillery, Minister for Education, later President of Ireland (1976–1990). Almost 1,600 athletes entered. The trophy for the Willwood Tailteann Athlete of the Year, selected by a panel of former Tailteann Games Champions, was presented to 18-year-old Phil Hannigan (Oatlands College) who won the 100 yds in 10.1 sec and placed 2nd in the 440 yds. Although the short-listed contenders were never publicly declared, pundits cited Frank Murphy (O'Connell Schools), winner of the 15-17 880 yds, Lt John "Junior" Cummins (Curragh), winner of the 17-19 mile, and James Sheehy (De La Salle, Macroom), winner of the 17-19 High Jump.

Numerous changes to the format of the Willwood Junior Tailteann Games occurred as the years passed. In 1964, when they were opened by Ron Delany, an invitation relay between the Army, Garda Síochána and the Universities was introduced for a cup presented by the Willwood Athletic Foundation, the first winners being the Army. The age groups also changed to U14, U16, U18 and U21 from 1964 through 1966. University, third-level college and athletic club athletes competed in the U21 category. In 1967 the age categories changed again to U15, U17 and U19 with the introduction of Tailteann events for national senior athletes and finally in 1968 to U13, U15, U17, U19, almost in line with current ISAA minor, junior, intermediate and senior age categories. Also in 1967 athletes from the Six Counties under the Ulster Schools Athletic Association competed for the first time since the split in Irish athletics 20 years earlier.

In its early years the Willwood Tailteann Games were a moveable athletic festival. In 1963 and 1964 the Games were held in September-October. In 1965–67 the Willwood Tailteann Games moved to May–June, then back to September in 1968–70 before moving to a July slot in 1971. Due to the delayed re-opening of post-primary schools in 1970, the Willwood Tailteann Games which had been scheduled at Belfield, UCD, on 26 September, were cancelled. By 1970 mention of the word "Junior" had been dropped from most reporting of the Willwood Tailteann Games in athletics under the auspices of the ISAA.

Limited female emancipation occurred in 1967 with 100 yards events for U15, U17 and U19 girls and open 100 yards and mile events for women. In 1968 an U13 category (100 yds only) was added and an 880 yards event for girls U15 and U19. An U17 category was added in 1969 (100 yards, 880 yards, long jump) and shot putt added to the U19 events for girls. In 1971, the U19 880 yards was replaced with a 1,500 m. It is unclear why the ISAA held these events at the Willwood Tailteann Games in the late 1960's yet did not introduce All-Ireland Championships for girls until 1971. Was it a testing of the waters for potential clerical opposition or due to sponsorship pressure from Willwood?

In 1973 the Willwood Tailteann Games changed to an individual athletics competition for boys and girls in the Intermediate age category selected by each province, with 15 events for boys and 10 for girls and in 1974 the event gained the status of an inter-provincial competition. In 1985 the sponsorship changed in name from Willwood to Silvermints. In the 1970's Willwood had become a subsidiary of the international food group Nestlé and produced a range of products from Chef brand sauces, Fruitfield jams and Marmalades and Silvermints and were the Irish distributors of Nescafé and other Nestlé products. The Willwood Group adopted the name Nestlé (Ireland) as its trading name on 1 April, 1985. From 1985 Nestlé Silvermints became the title sponsorship brand for the former Willwood Tailteann Festival. It later changed to Nestlé Kit-Kat as the title brand. Nestlé withdrew its sponsorship of ISAA championships in 2009 after 46 years due to the economic downturn. From 2011 through 2014 the Tailteann Games were sponsored by Aviva, in 2015 by GloHealth and since 2016 by Irish Life Health when it took 100% ownership of GloHealth. The current sponsor since 2023 is 123.IE. The Tailteann Interprovincial Games were cancelled in 2020 due to the Covid-19 pandemic. In 2021 they were held in September under Covid-secure protocols. Apart from the winning of a Tailteann Games medal the prize for the first two athletes in each event is a place on the Irish Schools team for the annual SIAB Schools Track and Field International against teams from England, Scotland and Wales.

In this compilation the results of events for Intermediate boys and girls (or the nearest equivalent where there were no U17 events in the early years of the Willwood Junior Tailteann Games) are given pre-eminence because these championships are for Intermediate school athletes currently. The results for other participants from 1963 through 1972 are included to ensure that all athletes who won an event during those early years are duly recorded as Tailteann Champions.
